Local Anaesthetic

A local anaesthetic is used to numb a small part of your body and stops you feeling pain, you will be awake and aware of what is happening.

Risks of anaesthetic.

- Pain and bruising at the injection site
- Temporary nerve damage, for a few days to months, causing weakness/ numbness of the area the nerve supplies.
- The local anaesthetic does not work.
- Infection at the site of injection requiring antibiotics and further treatment
- Damage to surrounding structures such as blood vessels, nerves and muscles.
- Allergy to the local anaesthetic

Topical Anaesthetic

Anytime you have an injection, permanent makeup, micro pen/ skin needling, or laser, there is some slight degree of discomfort. When dermal fillers are injected, it is likely you will feel pressure and stinging pain.

An option to avoid pain is to use topical anaesthetic cream which needs to be applied to the treatment area a minimum of 45 minutes prior to the service.

Anyone with a previous reaction to Lidocaine should NOT use topical anaesthetic.

Adverse reactions could be: Headache, light-headedness, or nausea.

By signing this form, I give consent for any of the above as the medical specialist deems necessary.
